

Hi,

I'm Robert Burwell from San Antonio, Tx. Actually I grew up in Ohio, studied music at University of Toledo, and then moved to Texas at my soonest opportunity. And so I have enjoyed the rich South Texas culture and warmer winters here since my move in the early 1980's. My childhood dream was to be a trumpet player and that I did until an unfortunate mishap as a teenager left me with a broken front tooth and no way to play the trumpet. All along, however, I had been experimenting with string instruments and in college specialized on string bass. I currently maintain an active performance schedule with the Victoria Symphony as well as various professional orchestras in and around the San Antonio region.
